STAFF YEARBOOK

Dedication

The Camp Barton staff is always maturing, evolving, and restructuring. A mix of old and new, traditional and fresh, experienced and novice is what makes working here unique. We soon learn that all on staff have something to share and we all have something to learn from each other. With that being said, it is always a pleasure having new faces and expertise join our staff, but it is quite difficult when staff move on and are unable to return from one summer to the next.

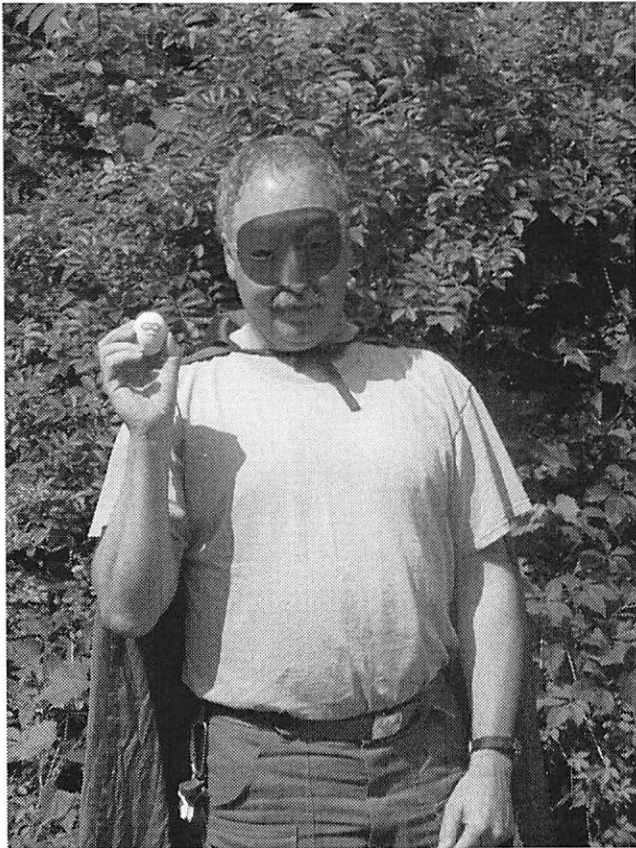

Bob Kestler is one of those staff members who sadly could not join us again this year. He was our beloved camp Commissioner. His experience as a camp staff member at a number of other camps and his dedication to the scouting movement as a whole was an amazing asset to an already great staff. Although he only worked here for four years, he was able to add a great deal to the program here at Barton. He made the camp band a working unit, brought organized music into all aspects of camp, prompted Christmas in July, new staff recognitions, and even initiated the tradition of this staff yearbook.

Although Bob could not join us this year, his love of scouting and general camp spirit still surrounds the staff and program here at Barton. We can only hope that he makes similar positive additions to other camps in order to continue strengthening the scouting movement as a whole.

Camp Director

After a rainy staff week, the staff was more than ready for the campers. Camp Barton, although a little soggy, was looking great. The addition of a split rail fence around the rifle range spritzed up the area nicely, improving safety around the range. Dave, our Ranger, did a great job in coordinating the effort to fix the suspension bridge before camp began.

No matter how the villains tried, they were not successful in dampening the spirit of the staff and campers. Through week 4, 1,916 merit badges had been completed - that's a lot of blue cards! The Woodsman and the Helmsman programs both experienced successful seasons. The Woodsmen built many cool things - the giant swing was awesome! The Helmsmen thoroughly enjoyed the sail to the north end of Cayuga Lake, the overnight at the state park and the sail back the next day.

In my many, many, many years as Camp Director, I haven't seen a better staff than this year's. We had two new Area Directors since last year, Nelson and Peter, although neither of them were new to Camp Barton. From Administration and Services, through Area Directors, to the instructors and CIT's, the staff did their best to provide outstanding program and customer service. Experience and enthusiasm throughout the entire staff is what continues to bring Troops back to Camp Barton.

I want to thank my staff for a wonderful 2009 summer here in Barton City. I invite you all to return to beautiful Camp Barton and hope that most of you will be able to join us next year to make 2010 as exciting as this year was!

Jamie Saroka

Program Director

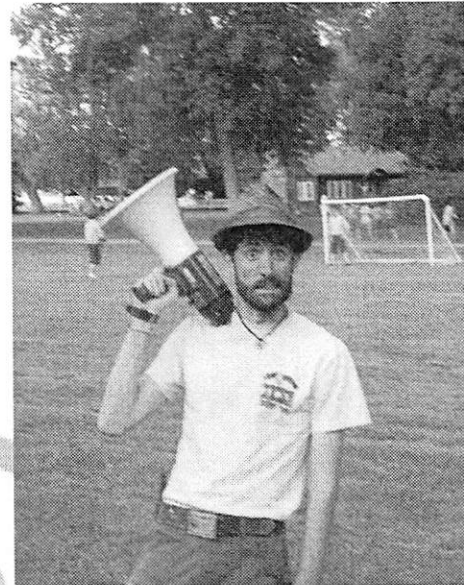

A Word from the Program Director:

It becomes apparent at the end of each summer how much we impact the scouts who pass through our arch. We put so much of ourselves into the maintenance, spirit, and excitement of this camp and scouts, scout leaders, visitors and fellow staff can all sense the energy that exudes from these Frontenac Falls.

With that being said, enough mushy gushy crap...

Ten dirty truths about being a Program Director:

- 1) There is an Administration Staff Lounge. The location of this is secret. Speaking of which: Brian, the garbage still needs to be cleaned out in there. Oh wait...it's a secret.
- 2) 90% of my job is taking complaints- most of which I have learned to just smile and nod at. Like when Adult Leaders complain that I call my "lectern" a "podium". Seriously?!!?!?
- 3) The prop closet contents provided by myself were all stolen. OH GASPI! Don't pretend you aren't happy that your Program Director is a convict.
- 4) Lost and Found is a joke. Things people actually want are never turned in. The only things in there are dirty towels and single shoes. And I still have no idea how we have a pair of underwear a week! However, I do have a few knives that I called fives on this year.
- 5) I miss the old Youth Protection video.
- 6) Camp is the only place I wear my straw hat. I actually am mortified when pieces of my hat fall off.
- 7) Barton time is actually random. Shhhh.
- 8) If someone took away my brown notebook, I would have no idea what to do. Literally. I have the memory of an etchasketch in a dryer. If I don't write it in that notebook, I have lost it.
- 9) The Green Gizmo makes me so nervous because I have no idea if staff has placed tricks in there.
- 10) Any idiot can do this job. I just took two years to prove it.

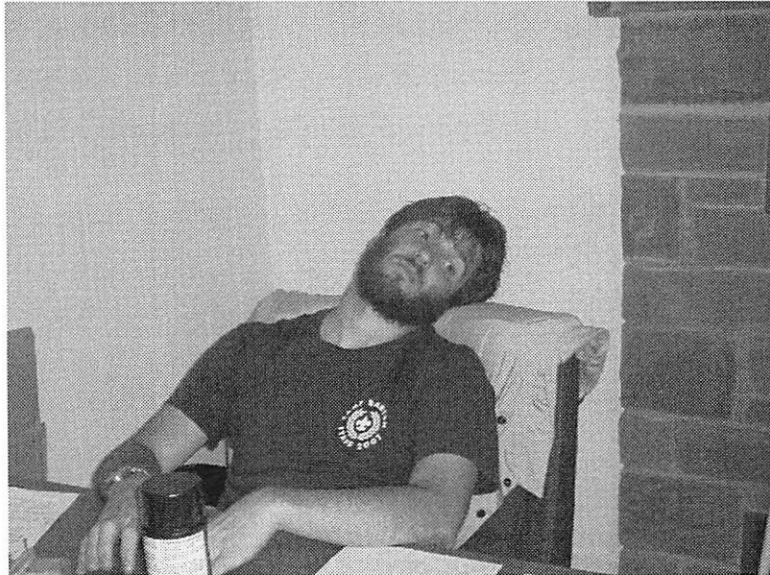

Love Always,

The Barton Godfather

Commissioners

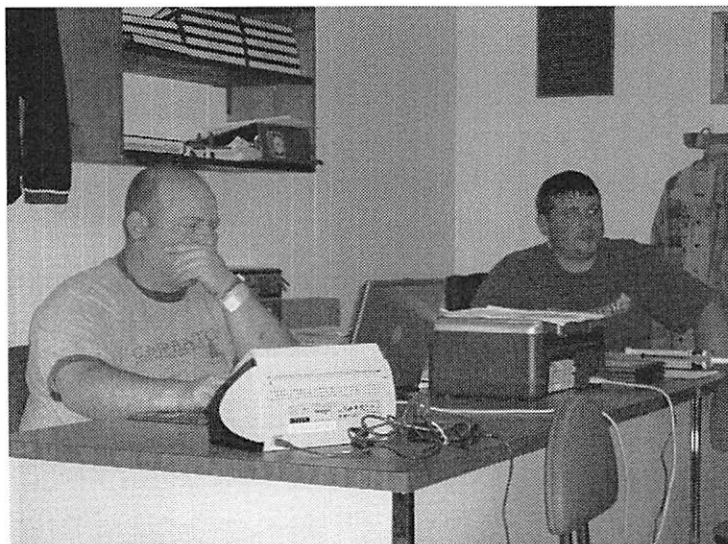

Commissar's Report

First off, it is great to be back on camp staff. This summer started off as somewhat stressful and daunting, mainly due to the fact that I was replacing the infamous and revered Bob Kastler. I struggled through staff week but I managed to get by with much help from the senior (read old) administration staff and the summer went on without any hitches from my end. I want to say that it was a pleasure and a privilege to work with Jamie, the Camp Director, and Jeff, the Program Director. It was also nice to have the Ranger, Dave, around to help me through with the service projects over the course of the summer. I also want to thank all of the volunteer commissioners that helped out over the course of the summer. I would list them all but I don't have enough room on the page. I just want to close by saying that it was a great summer and a lot of fun.

Philip Pamel

Commissar

Assistant Commissioners

Tim Clive & Dick "DJ" Jones

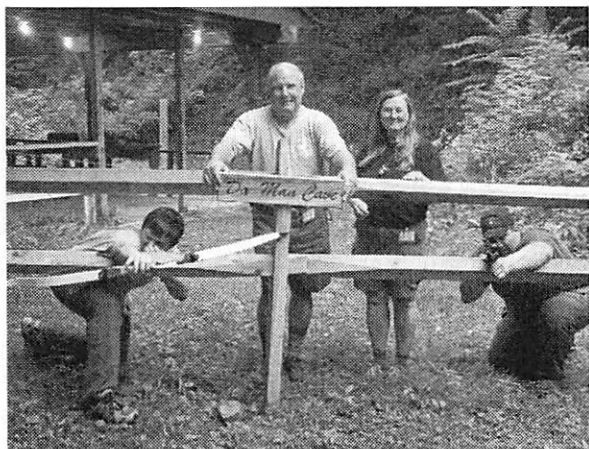

Also- those Volunteer Commissioners:

Doug Blakely, Roger Garnett, Mike Stoll, Jim Graney, Lee McKelvey, Tom Bogart, Tyler "Marvin" Webb, and Kyle Loundsberry

Field Sports

The Shooting Sports Department saw several returns this year. From Nelson returning as Shooting Sports Director to Diane returning to run the Archery range. Sean also returned as the Range assistant. Returns weren't the only thing happening on the ranges. A new perimeter split rail fence was installed on both ranges, giving them a visual improvement in addition to the added security. The rifle range received new rifles.

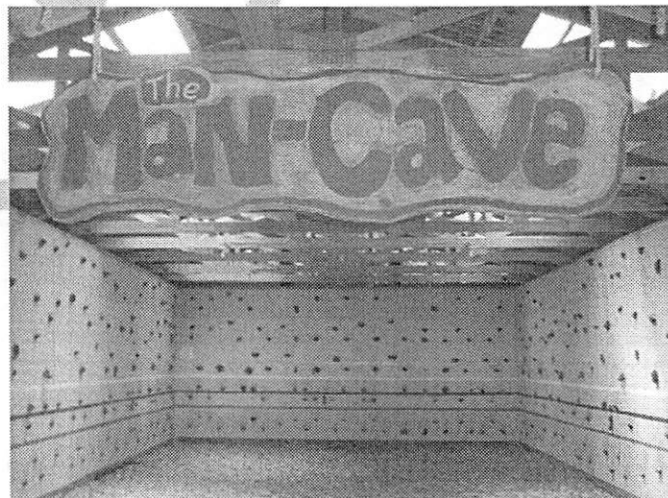

Success is best when it is earned, the Ranges were very successful. Large numbers of staff, scouts and scoutmaster enjoyed shooting at both ranges, especially for the High Shooter competitions. The CIT's provided much needed help and ensured the smooth operation of the ranges. And as a coup de' Gra, the 3" Ordnance Rifle from Reynold's Battery returned to camp to help kick off the last week of camp. All in all, the Return of Shooting Sports was a box office smash hit. And if you wish to disagree... You can answer to my gun...

The Man Cave

Another summer in paradise! The 2009 season picked up as though we never left. There were familiar faces with improved talents, bouldering this year.

The Fastest times for 2009 are as follows.

Week 1 = Istvon Buland	1:39 sec.
Week 2 = Nick Lee	1:46 sec.
Week 3 = John Larkin	54 sec.	2 nd Place Shea Hall 58 sec.
Week 4 = Mile Meyer	53 sec.	Wesley/Dylan 3 arm maneuver
Week 5 = Could be you?	???

Week 4 was a good week at "The Man Cave". Mike and Wesley successfully completed all three walls blind folded! Who can forget the invention of the Wesley/Dylan 3 arm maneuver. That's right 2 men 3 arms concord the wall after a brutal 20 minutes. Incredible! We also had a week moment where the wall had to be called "The Kitty Cat Cave". We quickly corrected the error and returned rightfully to "The Man Cave".

Many thanks to Tim Clive, who finally arrived week 3, to add some excitement to the afternoon program.

CIT's for the summer were Dave Wakemen and Mark Lutz. Mark introduced Disco Bouldering. The troops LOVED it!

Hope to see you all next year. Keep moving Forward. "The Man Cave - Jerry Reed"

Nature

Our world is in peril. Gaia, the spirit of the Earth, can no longer stand the terrible destruction plaguing our planet. She sends 5 magic rings to 5 special young people. Derek, from Africa, with the power of Earth. From North America, Greg, with the power of Fire. From the Soviet Union, Adam, with the power of Wind. From Asia, Comisi, with the power of Water. And from South America, Garrett, with the power of Heart. When the 5 powers combine, they summon the Earth's greatest hero: Captain Planet!

Nature

A terrible menace is descending upon the wilds of Camp Barton. The evil Dr. Logan Winter-Fresh-sh-sh-sh-Harry-Potter is plaguing innocent low-lying shrubbery with random walking sticks while driving away opponents with incessant turkey calls and the tapping of drumsticks. Powering his evil machines with knotweed tea, he crashes through the forest seeking to destroy all those who would call themselves compound leaves.

Word of these disasters reaches the planeeters, and they spring into action. The first to arrive at the scene is Derek, with the power of Earth. In addition to his mountain-moving presence, he is equipped with the excited energy of his own internal power plant. He is also equipped with a memory like a steel trap... a very, very rusty steel trap, and he must be reminded by the other planeeters even when it is time to breathe. Next to arrive is Greg, with the power of Fire. This man, obsessed with flame but only if it is more than 3 feet in length, can also be found with snakes exuding from every pore. Whisking in to help next is Adam, with the power of Wind. Rarely heard at more than a whisper of a breeze, Adam did finally raise to a category one-third hurricane force and nearly blew out eardrums simply from the shock if not the noise. Rushing in next was Comisi, with the power of Water. Somehow, his water powers seem to backfire and continue to soak him more than his opponents. He has also managed to become a target for the most wayward of Barton's citizens, and played a few games of tackle football when he least expected it. Then, finally making it from the peaks of the Chilean Andes comes Garrett, with the power of Heart. Normally using the Heart power to unite the planeeters, he has occasionally gone missing while diving into gorges and smashing every rock he can find.

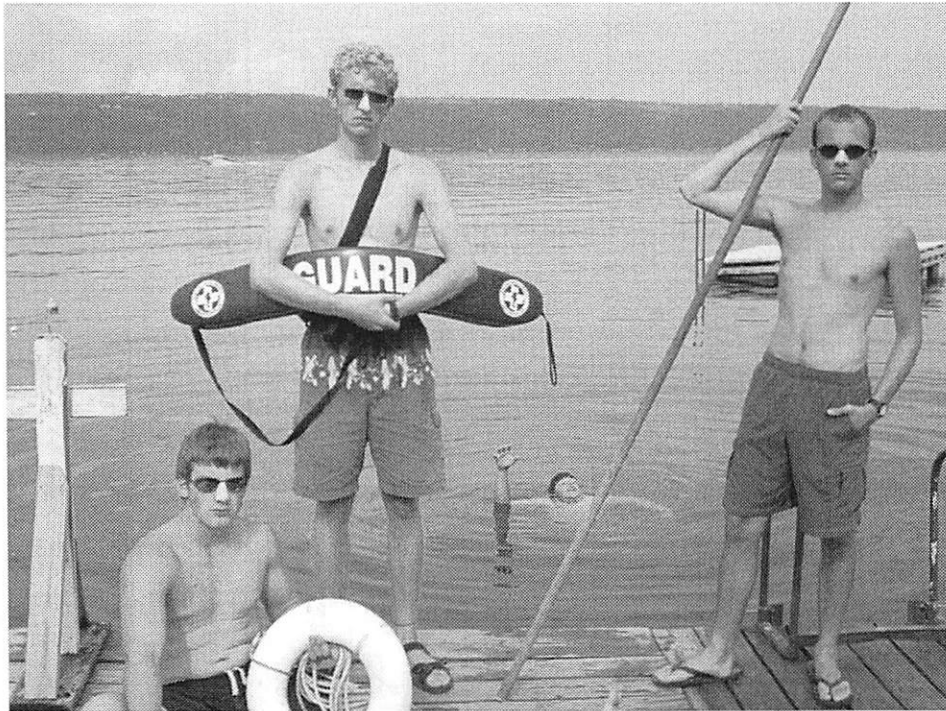

The planeeters finally finish introducing themselves and face off with Dr. Winter-Fresh. A fierce battle ensues, where the planeeters find it impossible to convince the fiend of minky-freshness that all of Earth's leaves are valuable, whether pinnate, palmate, toothed or untoothed. At the end of their rope, they combine their powers to summon Captain Planet, who successfully strips the young Mr. Potter of his poisoned knot weed tea, to the rejoicing of Barton's citizens. The forests were saved once again, thanks to the planeeters!

Go Planet! The power is yours!

Waterfront

Deep from the murky depths of Cayuga Lake arose a group of pasty white beings with a natural affinity for swimming and chillin'. The group stumbled onto shore and was quickly captured by a swarthy band of scouts. The creatures from the sea were brought in front of the Legendary Camp Barton Camp Director, Jamie Saroka. With a cruel mustache on his face, the Director forced the eight sea-men to work at his slimy old Boy Scout Camp for the rest of time.

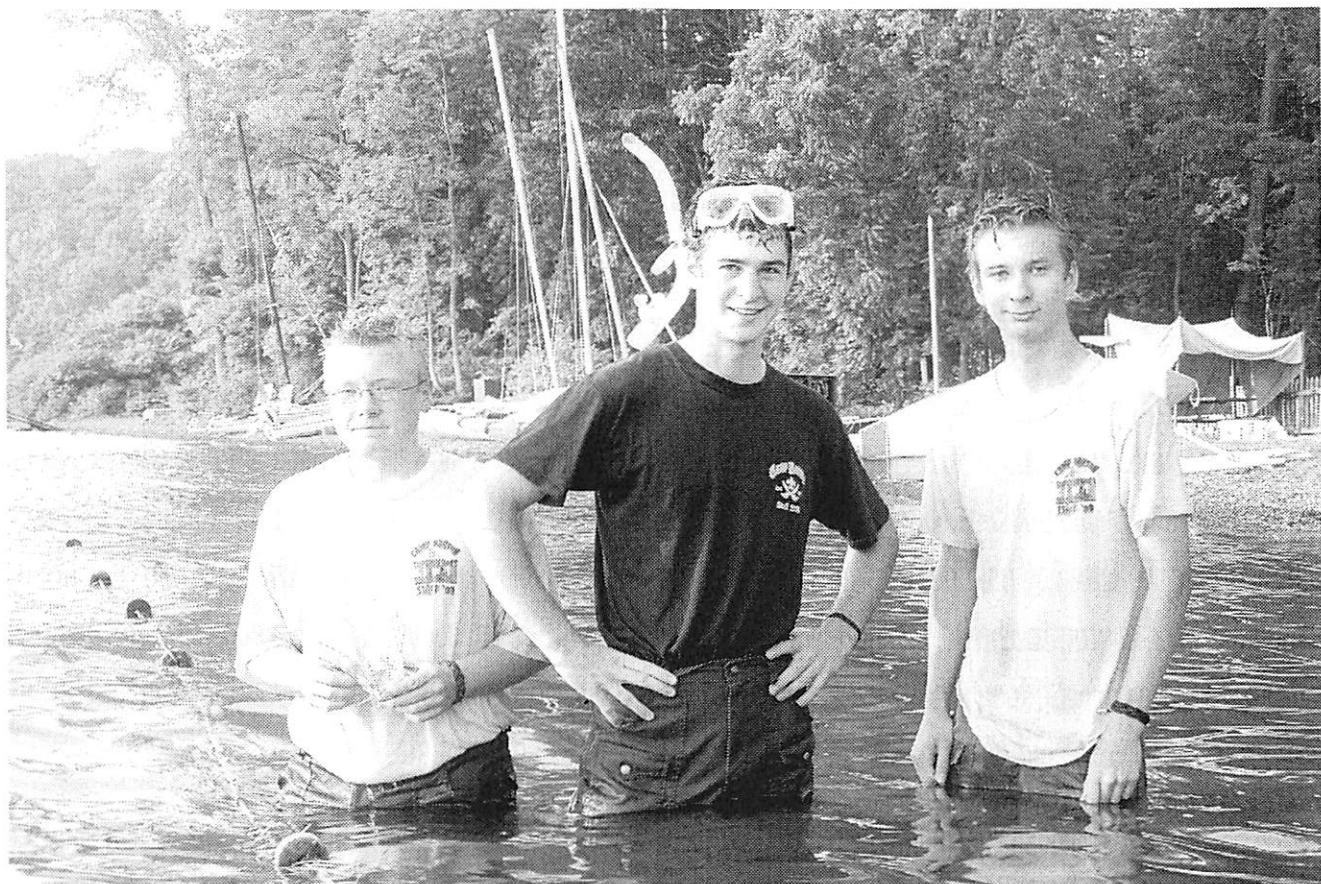

They became the waterfront staff at the dastardly Camp Barton, renowned for its insane staff and poisonous food. Forced to work with broken boats and countless piles of other unusable equipment, the waterfront staff did their best to teach the imprisoned scouts how to swim and boat. Even with their highly advanced water related skills, the waterfront staff was unable to help the scouts earn the fabled "merit badges". The scouts pretty much sucked.

The waterfront staff was comprised of an elite force including their Leader Tony Mastracco, his assistant Kevin Vorstadt, and their henchmen Ian Garnett, Matt Cushman, Dave Campbell, Theo Moore, and Logan Thompson. Over the weeks, the waterfront staff tried to think of ways to escape from the cold deathly grasp of Camp Barton. Calling out into the sea, the waterfront staff tried to gain aid with their struggle. Andrew Durand, Tim Baker, Dave Henton, and Carl Ekdahl answered the call and assisted the staff for a time by helping all but four of the staff to escape theretched place. Those four are trapped, waiting for the right time and plotting their revenge...

Handicraft

A dark night in a camp that knows how to keep its secrets. But on the only floor of the Handicraft building, one man is still trying to find the answers to life's persistent questions... Pete Marlingly, Handicraft Director.

It was late June. June 28th. I was at my desk, and was just adjusting the bucket that I had catching the rain water that leaked through the ceiling. This new place would take some getting used to. When I was getting ready to settle down in my damp chair, the phone rang. It was one of the big cats in the area, goes by the name of Andrews. Said he had a case for me.

The case sounded like a tough one. I didn't listen that carefully, I was trying to listen to my stories on the radio, you see. Something about a guy named Catalano who had gone missing. Anyway, I figured I'd better call up some of my colleagues, so I called up a guy I'd heard of, Inspector Matt Schrader, and Detective Don Pamel.

Handicraft

We were just moving into the Handicraft Lodge, where we were to base our operations for the summer, when I saw Trouble walk by wearing four inch stilettos. Trouble and her security guard. Yes, the Trading Post made many efforts to hold up our assignment, blazing loud show tunes, and making our students late to class... but we were never distracted from the case.

The summer went by smoothly, considering all of our lack of experience in Handicraft. It turned out that Matt had a knack with tin cans, and he was soon running a very successful tin boat production. Jon discovered an artistic flair, and spent the weeks finding stranger and more bizarre colors to paint our picnic tables. And few have seen more extreme baskets than those to come out of Cayuga Lake on Wednesday and Friday mornings. I do admit that of the three of us, I definitely was the one to let the case get to my head, there were a few breakdowns and incidents of crying in the Dining Hall over paint and wood... But we couldn't get too comfortable. Just when we thought we were safe, Sydney Winter attacked and hit us hard. But we pulled through, and carried on, building more new things out of old things. Making them moderately aged things, I guess.

The plot of the case just got thicker and thicker. We were at a loss for the battered and worn condition of the tables and the tools. Perhaps Sydney Winter had attacked before, and the scratches and scorch marks were all that was left to tell the tale? Something had definitely happened here. Maybe something linked to the disappearance of Catalano? And the constant production of pointy sticks, and razor sharp spoons whose function still remains a mystery, what of that? To make matters worse, a puzzling Indian Stick kept appearing around the lodge as well.

Oh Handicraft, the scouts have tried to destroy you time and time again. Every day is a trial by fire, often literally, but you remain standing. Well, we never did solve the case, if you were still wondering about that. Sometimes, you just have to accept that no matter how much you clean, it will always look old and grizzled, and that to some artists' eyes, inside a block of basswood does indeed lie a smaller, slightly shaved down block of basswood. If you don't know what to call it, it must be a Project. We made a lot of Projects didn't we, Handicraft?

Wishing you many more summers full of them, your loving staff, Pete, Matt, and Jon.

Outdoor Skills

The first Midnight Lasher was like any other man. Born in Aurora, Illinois, which is a suburb of Chicago. (Excellent) He had plenty of joe jobs nothing you'd call a career. Let's just say he had an extensive collection of name tags and hairnets. Until the age of 30, he still lived with his parents, which was both bogus and sad, so he moved west for the promise of gold, free root beer, and Levi's jeans.

He came upon an empty field in Indiana, and thought to himself, "Damn, this is gonna be a sweet pad." And so it began.

The first winter nearly killed him. He never spoke much of what happened, but he was found wandering the Rocky Mountains, eating raw Snipe, and trading with Indians for cans of elbow grease, left-handed smoke-shifters, and the bubbles from levels. He came down from the mountains a changed man.

Outdoor Skills

Those who knew him then often speak of the distant look in his eyes. He lived a solitary existence, disappearing for months at a time to study the secret Navaho arts of rope making and canoe swinging. One day, when he could learn no more, he set out wandering across the earth, carrying only a guitar and a dutch oven. He announced that a naked Indian had told him to go to London, England. Records lose his trail in Peru, riding a fearsome man-eating caterpillar and being worshipped by local fruit growers.

Eventually, he found his way to Piccadilly Circus, and he knew that he had found the right place, because it was a really shifty circus. There, he met the infamous Whitecastle Lasher, who had retired from confounding local police with his heinous crimes. During his journey, the traveler had uncovered secret lashing techniques of otherwise primitive or obscure cultural groups, and he impressed the Whitecastle Lasher, who came out of retirement to teach him showmanship and irony.

Together, they gathered like-minded pioneers, including Del Preston, Jim Morrison, Rip Taylor, and Flash Gordon. They concocted the ultimate midnight lashing: within a single hour, using undead labor (non-union), 1200 ft of manila rope, 5000 brown M+M's, and every tree in Sherwood Forest, they encased the Parliament building in a giant hamster wheel, thus destroying the British Empire. In the morning, it was swiftly dismantled by Lord Robert Baden Powell, who personally executed the ringleaders of the Lashing.

The legend survived, carried by Prince Vulkan and Prince Barron of Mongo, who formed a midnight lashing team to combat the return of Ming the Merciless. Slowly, the Midnight Lashers spread across the world, hiding beneath the cover of darkness, until the increasing lameness of society in general caused them to fade into obscurity.

Years later, into the Outdoor Skills Department at Camp Barton, there came a traveler in the night. He wore a mask, but he claim to be the original Midnight Lasher, and he bestowed upon the Staff a sacred duty: to uphold the art of midnight lashing, and to bring awesome into the world.

The heirs to the legacy of the Midnight Lasher were:

Services

This has been a great summer. The Kitchen staff had multi talents and interests this season. For instance.

Jaime is a Civil War Soldier in reenactment

Dave Horak has a brown belt in Tae Kwan Do

Dan Stanton likes cars and enters car shows

Danny E. likes to scare Mama K with little mice that jump out on her and make her scream

Ben is the Reese Pieces Guy, he just loves candy!

Mason & Jake are also part time Trading Post Staff

And Mama K deals with all of this by reminiscing about drinking her Bahama Mama's

A lot of dishes and meals were prepared and hopefully done in "good taste" and service.

Just to let you know, we cut and served 105 Watermelons this summer.

Thank You to all those staff members who, after working a full day came and filled in for the dishwashers so they could enjoy a night out!

The Band

Although missing its Master Cylinder Bob Kestler this season the Barton Band continued to uphold its musical tradition.

Able mis-led by Band Master Nick Blakely and aided each week by a series of guest artists like Boom-Boom and the Chief this small, yet mighty, band of Super Mustelians graced the Parade Field at precisely 5:45 each evening with a quality of musical expression seldom experienced along the banks of Cayuga Lake.

Trading Post

Here at the trading post we have a fire breathing dragon, and her name is Gretchen. When she gets angry fire shoots out of her mouth and has melted all of our candy for week five. Then we have security although Mike has guarded the trading post well, we now have extra security because of the rifle he got for Christmas in July. Since handicraft has not fought for the rights of the building, we the trading post still own it. HAHAI

Although the feud has not ended because handicraft has offered Mike a triple in salary. But Gretchen has raised the salary quadruple. Then an inner feud between the two of us over whose slushie is better, the manager's special or the security's special has ensued throughout the entire summer. The race for this year has been too close to know. And at this time we would like to apologize to all of the other departments for stealing some of your employees and converting them into part time trading post staff. But we do have a new member this year, Olebogeng.... (Sorry Ole we can neither pronounce nor spell your name). At first Ole was shy and was converted over the summer to being a ninja business manager. She has been a great asset in stealing uhhh..... We mean counting money with us. Together we have taken money from unsuspecting youth and now suspecting adults who whip out their credit cards. We enjoyed working with everyone this year and will never forget anyone - no matter how hard we try...

This summer started off with an amazing 2 CITs ready to go at the beginning of staff week, but by the end of the week we were up to a respectable 6. We even got three more scouts to sign up over the course of the summer bringing up the number to 9 CITs. We had Mike Bogart help out all summer long at Outdoor Skills, Handicraft and Shooting Sports. Jonathan Mead, Mark Lutz, and David Wakemen all spent time helping out at the Waterfront. Riley Sullivan and Nick Grantham helped out at Nature, and Josh Moshier and Connor Chase spent some time at Handicraft. Jake Zwierzynski was at Nature for a week but was also getting trained to fill in for the Dining Hall Steward, so he was only a CIT for a week but a great help. We are looking forward to what these guys will bring to staff in the future.

Theme

Fifteen years ago, Barton City was plagued by three super villains. Dr. Cranium (Garrett Tate) once a professor of the human mind, he soon went mad developing a serum which made himself a super evil genius, the Green Menace (Nick Blakely) - an abnormality that developed out of a used tissue that fell into a pool of radioactive goo, and the Sultan of Pain (Peter Mathingly) a regular kid whose parents allowed his overactive imagination to take over. But one man stepped forward to battle these heroes and return Barton City to the safe haven, the citizens had come to expect. his name was simply. THE BARTON CITY SUPERHERO (Mike Carlson)!

But...he was crappy at life.

Theme went from melodramatic (Sunday Campfire) to ultra creepy (Wednesday Staff hypnosis) to off the wall insane (the podium hung upside down). The Theme hit a high note each week with our Water Carnival.

Super Strength - Heavy set kids being poked up by little first year scouts while cold water is poured on them.

Super Speed - Jerry hilariously laughing as kids scream at the top of their lungs while water is poured from helmet cup to helmet cup.

Flying Power - Our 65 foot slip and slide was only shadowed by the screaming of Brian Kent.

Mind Trance - Adam and Cody explaining the rules of their event while kids have a gutter filled with water hooked to all of their heads.

Kicking Attack - Far end of the carnival, not sure if they did anything?

Sonar Power - Nathan chucking rocks at kids with blindfolds.

Flame Throwing - Kids putting ice between their legs, on the ground, in their armpits and then finally in their mouths to melt them.
Ewww.

Power Absorption - Scouts looking like they are going the bathroom, while wearing a "sponge-backpack" (We should trademark this item!)

Extra Arms - Like most of our buildings- too many holes, not enough arms to stop the rain.

Shooting Accuracy - Water balloons breaking all over Greg O'Connor...not sure if a single patrol got to actually break one themselves.

Appendage Stretch - Jimmy getting a boat ride by 9 rabid scouts with no paddles.

Super Stupid Splash - Fat old men and women dressed as stupid shmucks jumping into the lake...how do we get away with this and why don't we put these videos on youtube?

Once again- Barton's themes are odd, unique, and always quirky!

Editor's Note

Another summer here and gone already, they always seem to pass by too quickly. As we re-enter the "real world", I hope that this, the 4th Edition of the Camp Barton Staff Yearbook will remind you of what a great summer it has been. There have been quite a few changes in staff as we gained over 14 first year staff members and welcomed back several more previous staff who had taken off a couple years. This combination certainly created a rather different camp environment that I hope is reflected in our 2009 Yearbook.

At this point there are a few people that deserve thanks, first and most significantly is Jeff. Without him the yearbook probably wouldn't have been finished on time, he helped me to harass the other area directors about getting in their articles and provided me with all the photos, and by just making sure I had everything I needed. I would also like to thank our office aides, Liz and Shauna for typing up quotes and bios, and finally Mikey for putting up with me during the countless hours I spent reworking every minute detail.
